BIG MEN WILL MEET TO-NIGHT.

Joe Choyinski and Jack O'Brien Will Likely Put Up a Clever Exhibition in Six-Round Contest in Philadelphia.

Two of the cleverest big men in the prize ring to-day will meet in a six-round bout in Philadelphia to-night. The men are "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien and Joe Choyinski. Not in a long time have two men so evenly matched in science and hitting powers been signed to battle for supremacy. Besides being gifted with cleverness, both men are great ring generals. While it has been frequently said that Choyinski has gone back, he did not show any traces of it in his recent bout with Peter Maher, whom he disposed of in two rounds. This will be the second time Choyinski and O'Brien have fought. They met several months ago in a six-round bout in Chicago. O'Brien was awarded the decision in that contest.

McCormick to Meet Haghey.
Jack McCormick, the rugged heavy-weight fighter of Philadelphia, who was badly punished by "Kid" McCoy in a six-round bout in Philadelphia a few weeks ago, has been matched to meet Charley Haghey, the Boston middle-weight, in a ten-round bout before the Tammany A. C. of Boston, Wednesday night. McCormick will have to fight better than he did in the McCoy bout in order to beat Haghey. The latter is a stiff puncher.

Lenny to Box Tucker.
Eddie Lenny, the feather-weight boxer of Chester, Pa., was signed last night by Matchmaker Jack McGuigan to meet "Chick" Tucker, the feather-weight fighter of the Avonia A. C., who has been doing some good fighting in the Quaker City of late. They will try conclusions in a six-round bout before the National A. C. to-morrow night. Tucker is likely to give Lenny the hardest fight he ever experienced. If Tucker beats Lenny he will be matched to fight Danny Dougherty.

Dougherty's Next Bout.
Danny Dougherty, who recently defeated Andy Tokell, the English bantam-weight, in a six-round bout in the Quaker City of late, will have another encounter before the same club on Friday night. His opponent will be Tommy Love, the 115-pounder.

Stone and Schumaker's Bout.
Jimmy Stone, the 115-pounder, and Willie Schumaker, the 125-pounder, have been signed by Matchmaker Kevin, of the Essex A. C. of Boston, to meet two of the best fighters of Boston on Thursday night. Schumaker will meet Patsy McKenna in a six-round bout, while Stone will try conclusions with Non Perry, the 115-pounder of New England, in a ten-round bout.

BASEBALL CHAT.

"Bones" Ely, who last year played shortstop and second base for Washington in the American League, has been offered $2,500 and a bonus of $500 to play throughout the season with McCloskey's Pacific Northwest League team at San Francisco.

Harney Dreyfus, netting for President Potter, of the Philadelphia National League Club, has made a $5,000 offer for outfielder Gibson, of the Little Rock team, but his offer has been refused by manager Mickey Finn, of the Southern League team, which beat Pittsburgh yesterday.

Henry Killian, owner of the Boston American League team, has released Charles Baird, athletic director of the University of Michigan, from the contract Baird recently signed to become business manager of the Boston team. Killian's action is the result of the petition from the student body of the university, who are anxious to retain Baird as athletic director.

BOWLING, SHAVING AND WATCHMAKING EASY FOR ARMLESS BILLIARD PHENOMENON.

USING THE BRIDGE.

HOW TO WRITE WITHOUT HANDS.

WHAT INTELLIGENCE AND GRIT DID FOR HANDLESS GEORGE SUTTON.

In two years he has become almost a perfect billiard player, can ride a bicycle, goes hunting every fall and shoots accurately, winds his own watch, can take it apart and put it together; he shaves himself, bowls, lets himself in the door with a latch key and is about to graduate from a school of medicine.

every one else thought George would be an incubation the rest of his life. But they did not reckon on the cripple's indomitable character.

"As soon as my stumps were healed," he relates, "and I found myself with a strong constitution, I said to myself that there must be something even a handless man can do. Year after year I kept trying one thing and another. As I exercised the stumps more and more they seemed to reciprocate my brain efforts, and the first thing I knew I was able to write. That was the beginning."

Now Sutton can do almost anything excepting pick pockets. He scorns a valet, though his magnificent billiard playing nets him sufficient income. He employs one. But dressing himself is a mere detail. Give Sutton the implements, and he will take any watch apart, even the most intricate, and, by grasping the delicate tools between the two stumps, not only take the watch apart but put it together.

Shaving many persons think difficult. Sutton can twist his elbows and manipulate his head so as to perform that daily duty with alacrity and precision. The Yale lock and thin, treacherous key, that baffles the most handy, have no terrors for him. If Sutton comes home late to his wife—he is married—and has a fine house in Milwaukee—he could not give the "couldn't-find-my-key" excuse. Not on your life. Mrs. Sutton knows thoroughly her husband's ability.

Next to his billiard playing the most astounding thing Sutton does is to go hunting and bring back a good "bag." The gun he uses is a cleverly-arranged device that causes the hammer to drive down as the marksman pulls the gun back smartly against his breast. To get the gun in position, aim and fire take but the fraction of a minute.

Speed is the one thing you notice in all his actions. As the umpire at Daly's calls out in his monotonous drone "Miss and back's shot," the handless man almost leaps from his seat, flips his cue into position and gets down to the task.

Last week he and Mr. Gallagher—who is considered the very best of the second-class players, not quite so good as George Slosson or Jake Schaefer—played an fourteen-innings, half-line game. To the untutored it might be explained that in this game the table was marked off by four lines fourteen inches from the cushion. The idea is that it prevents a man from nursing the balls in a corner or along the sides, as the player must drive one of the object balls outside these lines every second shot. It is the best and most interesting of all billiard games. Gallagher gave Sutton 60 in a 100-point game. The most brilliant exhibition was Sutton's win with a score of 303 to 300. In that game the handless man overtook the other by making three straight runs of 23, 31 and 22, his average being 8.73.

Sutton has a perfect knowledge of the game, though he has only been playing two years; has no hesitation about shots, and played quicker than Gallagher. This, too, although half the time he must use a bridge. To place that he crooks his right leg up high, braces himself on the other leg, and then shoots either hard or lightly, as the occasion demands. Half the difficulty comes in withdrawing the bridge so that a ball does not foul on it.

The most remarkable shot he made in the series was when the three balls lay against the cushion. He "Englished" the cue ball, touched one object ball, his cue ball landed on the cushion, ran along for eighteen inches and then dropped down touching the other. The mass shot which is illustrated here Sutton makes frequently.

Though a success in professional billiards, this ambitious man says that he will not follow it as a life pursuit. He has already taken three years in the Milwaukee Medical School, and intends to graduate there and become a consulting physician.

As an object lesson in human energy, can you beat George Sutton?

"CORBETT" IS TOO HEAVY FOR TERRY.

Denver Champion Likely to Weaken Himself in Reducing to Required Weight.

(Special to The Evening World.)
SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—There is little enthusiasm among the followers of "Young Corbett" to-day. They are not expressing the confidence they did a month ago that he would "beat Terry McGovern in their championship battle, which will be decided to-morrow night before the San Francisco Athletic Club."

It is due to the champion's inability to be at the required weight of 127 pounds, at which he must weigh in with McGovern at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. With the fight about thirty-six hours off "Corbett" weighs 123.4 pounds. To get to even that figure was an awful ordeal for him during the past week. To take off the necessary two and three-quarter pounds, training experts declare, will have nothing but a weakening and disastrous effect on him. "Corbett" himself admits that he weighs a fraction of a pound less than 120.

The day before a fight is one which contestants usually give to rest. McGovern is doing it to-day, because he is well below the mark. He weighs exactly 124 pounds. All he needs to do is to take light exercise in order to maintain the superb condition he is really in. Such is not "Corbett's" good fortune. He will have to take his customary long run on the road and his two hours' work in the gymnasium to-day, and maybe do the same thing to-morrow. The time when he is not working he will have to spend wrapped up in thick blankets and sit beside a roaring fire to induce sufficient perspiration for the taking off of the extra pounds. He may be successful in it, but none can see where he can do anything other than weaken his condition.

"Corbett's Task Difficult."
Ordinarily it is not such a task for a man to reduce two or three pounds in a day. It is, though, after a man has spent a month or more in training as "Corbett" has. Shrewd betting men are convinced that if the latter gets down to weight when he enters the ring he will be weak. That, in a measure, largely accounts for the abundance of money offered on McGovern at the odds, based on the previous meeting of the pair, as ridiculous odds.

Despite the weight question, there is no denying "Corbett's" confidence. He says himself that he is overweight, but that by to-morrow noon he will be at 125 pounds. He says he feels strong, and that even though he works up to the hour of the fight he will not be weak. In talking of the fight he says he can see no other result than victory for himself.

McGovern Not Pleased.
The news of "Corbett's" being over weight is not pleasing to McGovern. He says he wants his intended foe to be in the best of shape, and would rather he was at or below the required weight now. A little laund on the road and a couple of rounds boxing with his partner, Eddie Cain, is all McGovern says he will do to-day and to-morrow. He declares he will enter the ring finer than he has ever been in his life, and better than he ever was in his life. "Terry is just as confident of success as I."

"I know I have a hard game," he says, "but I will win. I have my speed and my strength. In fact, there is not a flaw in my condition. There will be no lack of it. Just how I will win I cannot say. I never saw how to beat a fellow, but I will land many of my assortment of blows, but just watch for a left hook to the jaw. That may be Mr. 'Corbett's' finisher."

Graney Will Referee.
All details relative to the match are now completed. The referee of the fight will be Eddie Graney, who officiated in the championship match between Jeffries and Pittsingsham. He was mutually agreed upon last night. He accepted the position.

The advance sale of seats has been exceedingly large and indications point to the biggest attendance at any fight in the history of the game in the West. Men declare all over the country are here, but there is little or no betting on the result to date. Followers of both men are looking for odds. Neither want to give them, but before night it is expected that many thousands will be wagered at 100 to 50 on McGovern.

1,000 MEN AT WORK BUILDING TRACK.

When Westchester Association's New Course Is Finished It Will Represent $4,500,000 Outlay.

From now until early in 1905, 1,000 men will have plenty of work to do. They are those who will aid in the construction of Belmont Park, which two years hence will be the home of the Westchester Racing Association, which now holds forth at Morris Park. The work of building the track has begun, and when finished will represent an outlay of nearly $4,500,000. It will be the finest racetrack in the world.

There will be six distinct tracks. The main track is to be one and one-half miles; a chute seven-eighths of a mile; a chute three-eighths of a mile long; one and one-quarter miles steepchase track and a one-mile track for exercising horses. The grandstand will be 150 feet long and 90 feet wide and there is to be a free stand 300 feet long and 30 feet wide. There will be stable room for 2,000 horses.

WEST NEW YORK TEAM OPENS LOCAL SEASON.
Kid Carsey's West New York baseball team opened the season on the West New York grounds yesterday in a game with the Bronx nine. The game was exciting from beginning to end and was marked by many star plays.

Although the weather was a trifle cold for baseball, a good-sized crowd enjoyed the nine innings. The final score was a tie, 15 to 15. An interesting game is promised for next Sunday.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE.

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper-colored blotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.
